COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

Glasgow Green Map for COP26

In the run up to COP26, Stop Climate Chaos Scotland and Glasgow Eco Trust teamed up to create a map Glasgow using the open source platform Green Maps. We're mapping community resources and sustainable, locally run businesses so that those coming to COP26 get to truly experience Glasgow. We will direct visitors and activists to places to eat, shop and visit that bring money to local communities and make them feel welcome in our city.

We're asking the Glasgow community to share their favourite, local places to the map. These could be cafes, zero waste shops, bike shops or community gardens. Post-COP26, this will create a legacy that can be built on by the community for an even greener Glasgow.

If you have an item that needs to be repaired, call on the number below to enquire if this is possible and you can arrange to drop it off. All they ask is that you give them a donation when the job is completed and you may need to pay for any parts required for the job. They are also happy to take items such as old bicycles that they could potentially use for parts. It is definitely worth giving them a call.

hat is a Green Map to th m reen Map is a free tool that helps them to visualise and share information with other people they ork with, and members of the community they are their to support. The map gives them a tangible, isual outcome to support future planning decisions and could also be used as evidence community onsultation. If they have used the online mapping platform and run a campaign, they can evidence nformation about wider community engagement. They might also be able to evidence a range of pinions.

esources, or networks they need to consult:

eople living near green spaces, people not accessing green spaces, health and well being networks, oung people, older people, community development trusts.

hat do they need to start:

raining, short explanatory video on how to set up a map, campaign, manage a team and add and extract ata to a map.

eassurances about data protection and information about how the process of mapping helps them meet tandards of public engagement.
